CHANGE AND THE CHANGELESS.

FROM DEERLAND'S "HOLY-ROD WOUNDS."

The eye that sparkles with a flash of mirth, Is quickly ere long in swelling streams of sorrow; Tears flood the source where laughter had its birth;
To-day we smile—we melt in woe to-morrow.

The trans and lineaments we hold so dear, Harden and stiffen in a marble sterner;
We look our last upon the funeral gear,
And bid one sleeper to a countless number.

But love is changeless in the changeless soul, Though born of earth, and reared in homes that perish;
Based on the wings of ages as they roll, It clings to memories it was wont to cherish.

Amidst the glories of your radiant skies, Transplanted thither from its mortal dwelling, It does us in of use for whom in fleshly guise With tenderest thoughts its faithful breast was swelling.

Oh! fondly nurture in thy heart of hearts,
The precious gem whose pulses throb with ever;
And when they spring to life in thy purest parts, Life's sacred ties can death all fail to sever!

TIS HOME WHERE THE HEART IS.

BY ANNE SOUTHWORTH.

If it once be there;
Affection can render
A wilderness dear.

'Tis the heart that must ever Give language to power;
To cheer and console us In sorrow's dark hour.

There is joy where the heart is;
For who would not dwell With dear ones around them,
The heart's own dwell?

To the heart to every pleasure,
To grief and to joy;
To sympathy ever
Gives us the true relief.

There is rest where the heart is,
Though our time be short;
And true happiness lies In content with our lot.

For rest can never Bring us to our last;
But you ever will find
Where the heart is, life's true rest.

Autumn.

AUTUMN.

BY F. B. DUFFIE.

Oh, Autumn! thou art here a king—
And round thy throne the smiling hours, A thousand fragrant tributes bring,
Of golden fruits and blushing flowers.

The approach of this pensive, solemn and beautiful season, is now heralded by the rainbow tinted woodlands, and mournful wailings of the wind, that seems to chant a sad and cheerless anthem, as a requiem to its departing glories. Already bath Autumn robes the trees in its lively various hues, and from the bright glossy green, of the leaves that vaunted upon the summer spray, a change has come over them, and they are now clad in the gorgeous attire of scarlet and gold, purple, dun, and vermilion.

Out then in the woodlands! and breathe the last fragrant sighs of the summer's nursings, as they go to their richly strewn beds—and there they will find food for reflection in every peering leaf and flower.
Each hath a homily in itself—even the smallest and simplest, when examined, will lead thy thoughts to the Great Creator!— And there, too, would I send the unbeliever, who scoffs at the truths of the Divine Gospel, and bid him answer, if chance hath formed the varieties of leaves and flowers that he is blaspheming at his feet? Did chance impair to the life its snowy bosom, or the rose its crimson heart? Who will be so blind as to hold that it did? Let me muse, then, on the woodlands, fraught with these simple and beautiful creations, that bestow such a salutary lesson. A withered leaf? It is typical of human life. It is a connecting link in the chain of memory, and recalls the ennobling association of other days, for since then we have last seen it.

Autumn! we have lost cherished friends and relatives—those in whom our hearts were garnered up—and in thy mournful wailings the sorrowing lesson now finds relief.

Who is there, with feelings never visited by an intercourse with a heartless world, that does not feel his spirits tuned with the pensive solemnity of the season, as he wanders forth amidst the "saw and yellow leaves" which rustle beneath his footsteps? How soothing, methinks, is his influence, and the heart he comes filled with softer and better emotions.
How humbled and subdued does he feel who treads the forest sanctuary wholly under the dominion of Autumn! The proud visions of ambition and distinction vanish away like passing clouds. He wonders at the change, and can scarcely believe himself the same individual who, but a few minutes before, had mingled in the gay vortex of fashion. Now, he desires no more to be in her presence. Sweet solitary thoughts of death, steal upon his mind—he thinks that he could live and die in such a spot, when all fair things are fading away. And yet it is irresistible to roam through the Autumn woods, and listen to the thousand whispering tongues that fill the air. There is a feeling of sadness that pervades the mind, and although partaking as it does of a melancholy character, it is nevertheless grateful to the heart, filling it with emotions of a sublime and thrilling nature, awakened by no other season of the year!

It seems to tincture the feeling with a sadden inspiration, and awakens the latent energies of the mind to the glorious spectacle of woodlands dying like the dolphin, amid the most gorgeous colors—the last still loveliest, until all has faded into the somber-tinted garb. The chimes of our noble lakes are objects, indeed, of intense interest, while under the dominion of Autumn, and its regal splendor! The eye of an European is startled with the lavish profusion of our forests, with their century crowned monarchs, arrayed in their leafy robes, resplendent with the Tyrian dyes of Autumn.

The American Autumn! There is poetry in the very association. The Oak, in its deep, crimson robes—king of the woods!
The Corn, of a still bloodier hue, like the annointed victim of tyranny, bleeding from every pore, stands, its emblem, by the side of its regal representative. The Birch, stripped of its foliage, and its broad leaf disporting in the breeze, or carried down by the streamer. The Maple, and its golden leaves, adorning the woodlands with their rich and sunny dyes. The Cherry, in its classic, picturesque beauty.
The Cherry, and its deep, rich foliage. The Ash, holding the silver underneath each leaf. The Willow, and its tiny, beautiful verdure. The Cypress, with its slender leaf of tenderness hue. The Spiral Pine, and the Cedar, in their eternal green.

Fleets of golden grain, and orchards laden with luscious fruit, and vines with clustering green.

"Beeding to earth, purple and gold," and clear, sparkling streams, and salmon fishing, and field sports—all these, are thine, oh, Autumn! and own thy pensive sovereignty!

The European Autumn can in no wise be compared with that of America. The lovers of the picturesque are there prevented, I with no rich foliage of interminable forests, dying a variegated death—but in the language of the accomplished lady whose lines are prefixed to this essay:

"Here thou comest in saffron guise, In yellow cloak of sunset gold;
Thine, these are melancholy skies, With leafless flowers, pale and cold!"

Autumn!—it is the season of my native land—and when "the clouds of the valley" shall be hoisted upon my becalmed bosom, let it be when the wailings of the wind are heard in the woodlands, and amidst—

"fallen leaves that lie Like crimson carpets all around, Beneath a crimson canopy!"

The Swearer and his Boy.

A man in the State of New York, who was extremely addicted to profane swearing, was one day at work with a yoke of oxen near his house. The oxen not working to suit him, he began whipping them severely, at the same time uttering volleys of most blasphemous oaths. The oxen breaking loose from their burden, ran to the house, while the owner in a passion pursued them, and coming up with them at the house, he began whipping them again, and swearing as before. His little boy, at this time just old enough to begin to talk, began to prattle his profane oaths after him. No sooner did the father hear this, than his feelings were wrought up to a lively sensibility. He paused for a moment, dropped his whip, sat down and wept bitterly. A flood of kind remembrances at once rushed upon his conscience, which produced such an effect that he had no rest in his mind until his sins were forgiven.

"There is a great advantage in activity," By doing work quickly, animal power is saved to a considerable extent. Suppose two men of equal weight to ascend the same stairs, one of whom takes only a minute to reach the top, and the other four minutes; it will cost the first little more than the fourth part of the fatigue which costs the second, because the calculation of the muscles is in proportion to the time they are kept in action. The quick mover exerts a rapid movement, and there is more force in the first instant, but the slow supporter his foot for ten seconds.

"According to Chinese history the custom of such fast among the female of that people, originated several centuries back, when a large body of women resisted the government and endeavored to overthrow it. To prevent the recurrence of such an event, the use of wooden shoes was ordered on all female infants, a small size to be used, without great pain, to make any use of their feet.

"How to Cure a Cold.—Of all other means of curing colds, fasting is the most effective. Let whoever has a cold fast nothing whatever for two days, and his cold will be gone, provided he is not confined in bed, because by taking no food, the system is purified by food, but consuming that which causes his disease by breath, he soon carries off his disease by removing the cause. This will be found more effective if the sick person drinks to promote fasting. By the time that a person has fasted one day and night he will experience a freedom from pain and a clearness of mind, a delightful contrast with that mental stupor and physical pain caused by colds." And how infinitely better is this method of breaking up colds than medicines!

The Mail is to be carried from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh hereafter in 53 instead of 48 hours, by using the Central Railroad instead of the stage route from Chambersburg.

Compressing the Waist.

A writer in the Mother's Assistant, says, that a girl, she having been educated in an English boarding school, where she was lured up in buckram and whalebone. On her voyage to this country, in 1860, she threw her stays into the sea, and from that time has had good health.

I am now, she adds, in my seventy-first year, have had twelve children, eight of whom are living, and am blessed with an excellent constitution, able to walk eight miles a day without fatigue, and to be as useful in Sabbath-school instruction as I was thirty years ago; when, but for this timely release from thralldom, I might (humanly speaking) have made my grave in the ocean.

I was forcibly struck and pleased (as we always are when an author's opinions agree with our own) the other day with a passage, on the thirty-sixth page of the "Personal Recollections of Charlotte Elizabeth." Her father came in while the stay maker was spreading out her buckram, whalebone, &c.

"Pray, what are you going to do to the child?"
"To bring it to a pair of stays."
"For what purpose?"
"To improve her figure; no young lady can grow up without them."

"I beg your pardon; young gentlemen grow up very well without them, and so may young ladies."

"Oh, you are mistaken. See what a stout she has already; depend upon it this girl will be both a dwarf and a cripple, if we don't put her into stays."

"My child may be a cripple, ma'am, if such is God's will, but she shall be one of His making, not ours."

Therefore, she grew up without headaches, or other "body-like" maladies." Perhaps some may say this has no bearing on the subject we are upon; but I beg leave to differ, for the stiffening now put in the dresses of our females is more injurious to the vital parts of the body than the "stays."

I, equally with you, admire the present fashion of high neck-dresses and flowing skirts; but the wasp-like waists ruin the health of hundreds of the fair population of our land.

"Foolish Consequences of Folly.—An occurrence, which happened at a young ladies' seminary in New York, is mentioned in the Times of that city, which presents another proof of the folly of indulging in the thoughtless practice of attempting to frighten others. Two of the young ladies in the institution were engaged in their own room, conversing on the science of anatomy, in the course of which one of them proceeded to relate some experience she had formerly acquired in a dissecting-room. Just as the conversation reached this point, the door of the room opened and another of the inmates of the seminary entered with slow and solemn tread, having a white sheet wrapped about her form, and her face powdered to perfect whiteness, her jet-black hair, eyes and brows presenting a contrast which gave a startling vividness to her ghastly countenance. The lady who was relating her experience, as already stated, is said to be mentally superior to any of her classmates, and noted for her strength of mind and freedom from nervousness and absurd sensibility. So sudden, however, was the figure, just at a moment when her mind was least prepared for anything associated with thoughts of the dead, that upon beholding the apparition she fell senseless to the floor, and awoke to the scene around her only to show her anxious attendant that reason had been driven to the verge of the mental wreck. At last accounts, no change was discernible in the symptoms of the unfortunate girl, and there is little to encourage hope that reason will ever resume its seat. This occurrence, of course, has produced much distress, both in the seminary and in the families of the respective parties."

"A late Paris letter in the New York Times says—
A man that has created much excitement in this city, or indeed at Lyons, at Paris, &c., &c., is a young lady, lately married. She was sitting in the theatre by the side of her husband, when he was struck by a young man who occupied the seat behind her. The husband and his victim were entirely unknown to each other. The motive for the crime was said to be this: The young man, who was a travelling agent for a patent medicine, had obtained his wife's name, and the prospect of a wealthy and distinguished wife, had made him infernal. He had made his wife, and he had made her his wife, and he had made her his wife, and he had made her his wife, and he
